SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

Publications under review/in preparation

- ✓ The L'Aquila earthquake ten years on (2009-2019): impacts and state-of-the-art (special issue), G. Forino and F. Carnelli (eds.), Disaster Prevention and Management, 28(4), Emerald Publishing, Bingley (under review). An international collection of papers about long term effects and short and long term emergency and recovery practices and policies concerning one of the most studied earthquake by Italian social scientists.

- ✓ Local knowledge as an effective tool for flood risk reduction, F. Carnelli – in preparation, to be submitted hopefully for the Environmental Science and Policy.
- ✓ Science for DRM 2020: acting today, protecting tomorrow. Report by the Disaster Risk Management Knowledge Centre (DRMKC at the JRC). I'm co-authoring the subchapter 4.2 “Citizen participation and public awareness” (in preparation).
- ✓ An assessment of the Participatory Action-Research experience in L’Aquila ten years after the earthquake, L. Calandra, F. Carnelli and G. Forino, to be submitted for Disaster Prevention and Management, Emerald Publishing, Bingley (in preparation). An assessment of ten years of participatory action-research project in terms of community-based DRR.
- ✓ Ethnography of a present absence. Space-time practices and walking ethnography in post-seismic L’Aquila, F. Carnelli (in preparation). Based on my fieldwork in L’Aquila, it's a methodological and epistemological reflection on “walking ethnography” as a tool for carrying out a fieldwork in a post-disaster context.

Main publications:

- ✓ Capturing the multiple benefits associated with nature-based solutions: lessons from natural flood management project in the Cotswolds, UK, C. Short, L. Clarke, F. Carnelli, C. Uttley, B. Smith, Land Degradation & Development, 30 (3), 2019. An interdisciplinary analysis of innovative participatory and nature –based techniques for flood risk prevention in England.
- ✓ Governance, risks and natural events: actors and conflicts, F. Carnelli, G. Forino and F. Marincioni (eds.). In Proceedings of the XXXII Italian Geographical Congress, Roma, 2019. A special section on the most relevant issues about risk governance and an outline of current main risk and disaster researchers in Italy.
- ✓ Spatiotemporal pattern of social vulnerability in Italy, I. Frigerio, Carnelli, M. Cabinio, M. De Amicis, International Journal of Disaster Risk Science, 9 (2), 2018. A reflection on an innovative spatial methodology of social vulnerability assessment in Italy, which consider also temporal variations.
- ✓ Includere i saperi locali nella gestione del rischio alluvionale: l'esempio del natural flood management [Including local knowledges into flood risk management: the case of natural flood management], F. Carnelli in G. Trentin et al. (eds.) Atti del IV Convegno Italiano sulla Riqualificazione Fluviale. Tra cambiamento climatico e consumo di suolo: la riqualificazione fluviale per un nuovo equilibrio del territorio, Emilia Romagna & CIRF, 2018. A reflection on natural flood management as a way to include local knowledges and mitigate flood risk at local level.
- ✓ Social media and disaster governance: Twitter use in recent floods in Italy, F. Carnelli and G. Anselmi in G. Forino, S. Bonati, L. Calandra (eds.) Governance of Risk, Hazards and Disasters. Trends in theory and practice, Routledge, London (2018). One of the first qualitative analysis about the use of Twitter during emergencies in Italy and within a disaster governance framework.

- ✓ A socio-spatial vulnerability assessment for disaster management: insights from the 2012 Emilia Earthquake, F. Carnelli and I. Frigerio, Sociologia Urbana e Rurale, 111, Franco Angeli, Roma, 2016. A socio-spatial analysis with GIS technologies for a social zoning of vulnerability aspects at stake before and after the 2012 Emilia earthquake.

- ✓ L'Aquila 2009-2016. The earthquake in the Italian social sciences, F. Carnelli, G. Forino, S. Zizzari, Sociologia Urbana e Rurale, 111, Franco Angeli, Roma, 2016. An overview about the impact of the L'Aquila earthquake on the Italian social sciences, focusing on risk and disaster research.

- ✓ A “new normality” for residents and tourists: how can a disaster become a tourist resource? S. Mugnano and F. Carnelli in N. Bellini and C. Pasquinelli (eds.) Tourism in the city. Towards an integrative agenda for urban tourism, Springer, Dordrecht, 2016. A literature review about new innovative links between tourism studies and disaster research, with the analysis of two case studies in Italy.

- ✓ Oltre il rischio sismico. Valutare, comunicare e decidere oggi [Beyond seismic risk. To assess, communicate and decide now], F. Carnelli and S. Ventura (edited by), Carocci, Roma, 2015. An interdisciplinary volume, which promotes a dialogue between human and “hard” sciences about the construction and mitigation of seismic risk. I'm co-editor and I wrote the introduction with Stefano Ventura.

- ✓ “La festa di San Giovanni a Paganica. Riti e Santi fra le macerie del post-sisma aquilano” [St. John's in Paganica. Rites and Saints among L'Aquila rubble]. In: P. Saitta (ed.) Fukushima, Concordia e altre macerie. Vita quotidiana, resistenza e gestione del disastro, Ed.It Press, Firenze, 2015. This is the first Italian collective volume of ethnographies of disasters and I wrote a chapter about post-seismic folklore in L'Aquila aftermath, starting from a paper presented at Ethnography and Qualitative Research 2014.

- ✓ “Istantanee etnografiche post-sismiche da Paganica” [Post-seismic ethnographic snapshots from Paganica]. In: L. Calandra (ed.), Territorio e democrazia. Un laboratorio di geografia sociale nel doposisma aquilano, L'Una, University of L'Aquila, 2012. It is a huge collection of essays published by L'Aquila University. They deeply analyze L'Aquila earthquake and its aftermath through the lens of social and political sciences.

- ✓ Sismografie. Ritornare a L'Aquila mille giorni dopo il sisma [Sismografie. Back to L'Aquila a thousand days after the earthquake], F. Carnelli, O. Paris, F. Tommasi (eds.), Effigi, Arcidosso, 2012 (Finalist in Pordenone legge and Premio Carver – literary awards). It is a collection of articles that aims to create a dialogue among different human sciences about the consequences of the earthquake that hit the region of L'Aquila in 2009. I'm co-curator, I wrote the introduction and an ethnographic chapter based on my MA thesis: “Esserci a Paganica, II anno d.T.”
